FOREWORD

The purpose of this publication is to assist educators with the selection of materials for the study of Afro-American, Hispano and American Indian cultures. Many of the references have special significance to Colorado and the use of such materials would be of assistance to the study of Colorado history and the relationship of these cultural groups to the history of the state.

The committee responsible for the preparation of the bibliography searched out all available material and those items herein were selected for the three cultural groups.

Educators using this publication should also be alert to the wealth of material being published monthly on these same cultures and it is hoped that school or community librarians would prepare supplemental listings.

Commissioner of Education

AUDIO VISUAL MATERIALS LIST

Compilation of an annotated bibliography, although an arduous task, can still be rewarding. For this reason, the compilers of this bibliography are impelled to comment on the techniques of selection or the value judgments made about the appropriate utilization by teachers and pupils of its content.

Every attempt was made to be thorough, both in researching and evaluating the materials included. The basic procedure was to examine available materials. Tests of accuracy, fairness to topic, historicity, and readability were applied. Only after this kind of deliberation were selections included. Every member of the bibliographic team acknowledged the urgency of providing a source of useful material.

In each of the four divisions, the organizational pattern is obvious from the content. Reading level is indicated at the bottom of each entry. (RL - J, HS, A)

RL	= Reading Level
J	= Junior High School
HS	= High School
E	= Elementary School
A	= Adult (Teachers)
IP	= Indicates In Print
OP	= Indicates Out of Print
$	= Cost of Publication
HB	= Indicates Hardback Edition
PB	= Indicates Paperback Edition
Text	= Textbook

Other bibliographies are indicated for further study; also, many of these same authors have written many more valuable books and articles. Therefore, since there was some limitation as to space available, we would encourage wider reading from these same authors.

The committee urges all teachers to recognize the magnitude of preparing young people to live in today's world where the dream of the right to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness" must become a reality of existence for every human being on this planet.

Because the prices set by publishers change without notice, and because books and other materials can go out of print at any time, users of this Annotated Bibliography should consider it as a guide and not as a catalog.

It would be wise to contact the publisher, supplier, or jobber to check on current prices and availability before ordering.

An Audio-Visual Materials List follows the Annotated Bibliography.
